Description

I want to develop an android application that can be implemented for personal care. The developed application will keep the record of users health, expenses, and routine. The users will be able to insert the duration for which they do fitness workout, their weight, the food they eats, etc. It will also have the feature of note in which the user can write their expenses. Also, they can make daily routine in it.

Use-case

The end-user of the application that is going to be developed will be anyone, who is searching for the personal care.

The users will be able to insert the duration for which they do fitness workout, their weight, the food they eats, etc. It will also have the feature of note in which the user can write their expenses. Also, they can make daily routine in it.
